Purpose

This paper provides you with advice on:

- What happens to the National Education Goals (NEGs) and the National Administration Guidelines (NAGs) following their repeal, and
- How the government could be assured that a healthy eating policy was being implemented once NAG 5 is repealed.

Summary

- The NAGs and the NEGs are set to be repealed on commencement of the new strategic planning and reporting framework.
- A significant portion of the NEGs and NAGs are now set out in the Education Act 1989, or will be included in the new strategic planning and reporting regulations.
- This paper provides you with a ‘map’ of what happens to the NAGs and the NEGs once they have been repealed, and advice on how government could be assured that a healthy eating policy was being implemented following repeal of NAG 5.

Background

1. The National Administration Guidelines (NAGs) and the National Education Goals (NEGs) are due to be repealed on commencement of the new strategic planning and reporting framework.

2. The NEGs set out the direction of the education system, and the NAGs set out some of the key requirements for board administration.

3. In 2015, the Taskforce on Regulations Affecting School Performance (the Taskforce) identified a number of issues relating to how strategic direction is set in the education system and how schools are accountable for implementing this direction.

4. In particular, the Taskforce found that the Education Act 1989 (the Act) does not provide a clear and visible purpose statement that articulates the goals of New Zealand’s schooling system. For example, the NEGs are third-tier legislation, and schools also receive messaging about strategic direction from the curricula, and non-statutory documents such as Ka Hikitia and the Pasifika Education Plan. The Taskforce also identified that the responsibilities of boards are unclear in the Act.

5. The Taskforce noted that this creates uncertainty about what it is boards should, and can legally, do. Their roles and responsibilities are scattered over different sections of the Act, as well as the NAGs. In some cases, they are not explicitly stated and must be inferred.

6. The Education (Update) Amendment Act 2017 (the Update Act) introduced changes to the strategic framework for the education system to address these issues. This included:
   a. introducing a number of high-level and enduring objectives for the education and learning system;
   b. establishing a mechanism for government to set out its medium-term priorities for early childhood education and schooling through a statement of National Education and Learning Priorities, or a NELP;
   c. clarifying the roles and responsibilities of boards of trustees by grouping them together in new Schedule 6; and
   d. establishing a new strategic planning and reporting framework for schools to ensure schools are giving effect to the strategic direction.

7. The NELP must reflect the objectives for education, and boards are required to have regard to the NELP.

8. Under the new strategic planning and reporting framework, a board’s strategic plan must set out its strategy for achieving its objectives as set out in Schedule 6, clause 5 which states that:
   (1) A board’s primary objective in governing the school is to ensure that every student at the school is able to attain his or her highest possible standard in educational achievement.
   (2) To meet the primary objective, the board must—
      (a) ensure that the school—
         i. is a physically and emotionally safe place for all students and staff; and
         ii. is inclusive of and caters for students with differing needs; and
(b) have particular regard to any statement of National Education and Learning Priorities issued under section 1A; and

(c) comply with its obligations under sections 60A (in relation to curriculum statements and national performance measures), 61 (in relation to teaching and learning programmes), and 62 (in relation to monitoring of student performance); and

(d) if the school is a member of a community of learning that has a community of learning agreement under section 72, comply with its obligations under that agreement as a member of that community; and

(e) comply with all of its other obligations under this or any other Act.

9. This means that boards will be required to set out in their strategic plans how they will give effect to their objectives under Schedule 6, the NELP, as well as any obligations under section 60A. Similarly, annual reports will be required to show how schools are achieving this.

10. The key components of the new planning and reporting framework are a strategic plan, an annual implementation plan and an annual report. New section 116A of the Act allows regulations to be made which set out the detail of the form and content of these plans and reports.

11. This suite of changes in the Update Act, once fully implemented, will replace the current requirements and guidelines that boards use to guide their strategic planning and reporting and the administration of their schools.

What happens to the NEGs and NAGs following their repeal?

National Education Goals

12. The NEGs have largely been lifted up into the primary legislation. Some of the wording has been updated through this process. Annex 1 maps out where each of the NEGs have moved.

13. Most of the NEGs are now expressed in the new objectives for education in Part 1AA, or in Schedule 6, which sets out boards’ roles and responsibilities. This means that the vision for the education system set out in the NEGs is largely already reflected in the Act.

14. However, neither NEG 4, which requires a sound foundation for education in the early years, nor NEG 5, which requires a broad education covering essential learning areas, have been incorporated into primary legislation.

15. As the NELP is a vehicle for setting out the Government of the day’s key priorities, it is possible that these, or similar goals, could be picked up in the NELP. No decisions have been made on what the priorities in the NELP will be, and public engagement has not yet started.

National Administration Guidelines

16. Following commencement of the new strategic planning and reporting framework, a number of key legal requirements in the NAGs will be in the primary legislation. For example, the requirement to develop a strategic plan and a requirement to provide a safe physical and emotional environment for students.
17. We anticipate that much of the other detailed requirements set out in the NAGs will now be moved to the new planning and reporting regulations.

18. A number of the NAGs will not be moved into primary legislation or other instruments as they repeat requirements already in the Act. Annex 2 maps out where the current requirements will be located following repeal of the NAGs. As with the NEGs, some of the wording of the NAGs has changed through the Update Act.

19. The detail set out in NAG 1, which sets out requirements and priorities for teaching, learning, and evaluation, has not been incorporated into the Act. Planning and reporting regulations will be developed later this year, following the enactment of the Education Amendment Bill. These will focus on the new strategic planning and reporting requirements. We will provide advice on the potential content of these in November.

How could government require the implementation of healthy eating policies in schools?

20. NAG 5b requires schools to promote healthy food and nutrition for all students. NAG 5b has not been carried over into the primary legislation. There is currently no explicit requirement for schools to have a healthy food policy.

21. Aspects of student wellbeing are likely to be considered as the development of the NELP progresses. As schools must only have "particular regard" to the NELP, the NELP cannot be used to require schools to have a healthy food policy.

22. However section 118A does enable us to list matters that schools must include in their annual reports. We could investigate requiring schools to report on any healthy foods policy that they may have voluntarily adopted.

23. If you wished to ensure that a healthy eating policy was being implemented, you could develop regulations under section 78 of the Act, which allows the Governor-General to make regulations relating to the control, management, organisation, conduct and administration of schools. This regulation making power is not currently used for any regulations.

24. Alternatively, a power to set national performance measures (NPMs) was introduced in the Update Act. Section 60A sets out the empowering provision for NPMs and defines them as targets against which the performance of boards can be measured.

25. Schedule 6, clause 5 requires boards to comply with any obligations under sections 60A. Boards would also need to set out how it will achieve its objectives under clause 5 of Schedule 6. This would require planning and reporting on any NPMs in effect.

26. We could explore how the NPMs could be used to require schools to implement healthy eating policies, or related policies. This would require setting a qualitative target and would need further work.
